

— Wariner's WL 43.86 Handles Merritt —

by Phil Minshull

St.-Denis, France, July 18—Holiday season is now in full swing in France, which explained some of the empty seats in the usually packed-to-capacity Stade de France in the suburbs of Paris, but Jeremy Wariner was 100% in work mode and answered most of his critics who have been openly speculating that he has been slacking off since his winter move from former coach Clyde Hart.

After clearly holding back over the first 100, the Waco runner turned on the after-burners and tore up the track over one lap of the track at the venue for the 2003 World Championships, coming home in 43.86 for the fastest time of the year.

After just edging home in front of LaShawn Merritt by one-100th of a second a week before in Rome, this time the distance between Wariner and the Olympic Trials winner was nearly half a second, with Merritt well beaten but still clocking 44.35.

"I was great I ran the perfect race for where I'm at although I've got a lot of improvements to make before the Olympics. The main thing is, I made a statement with this race," said Wariner.

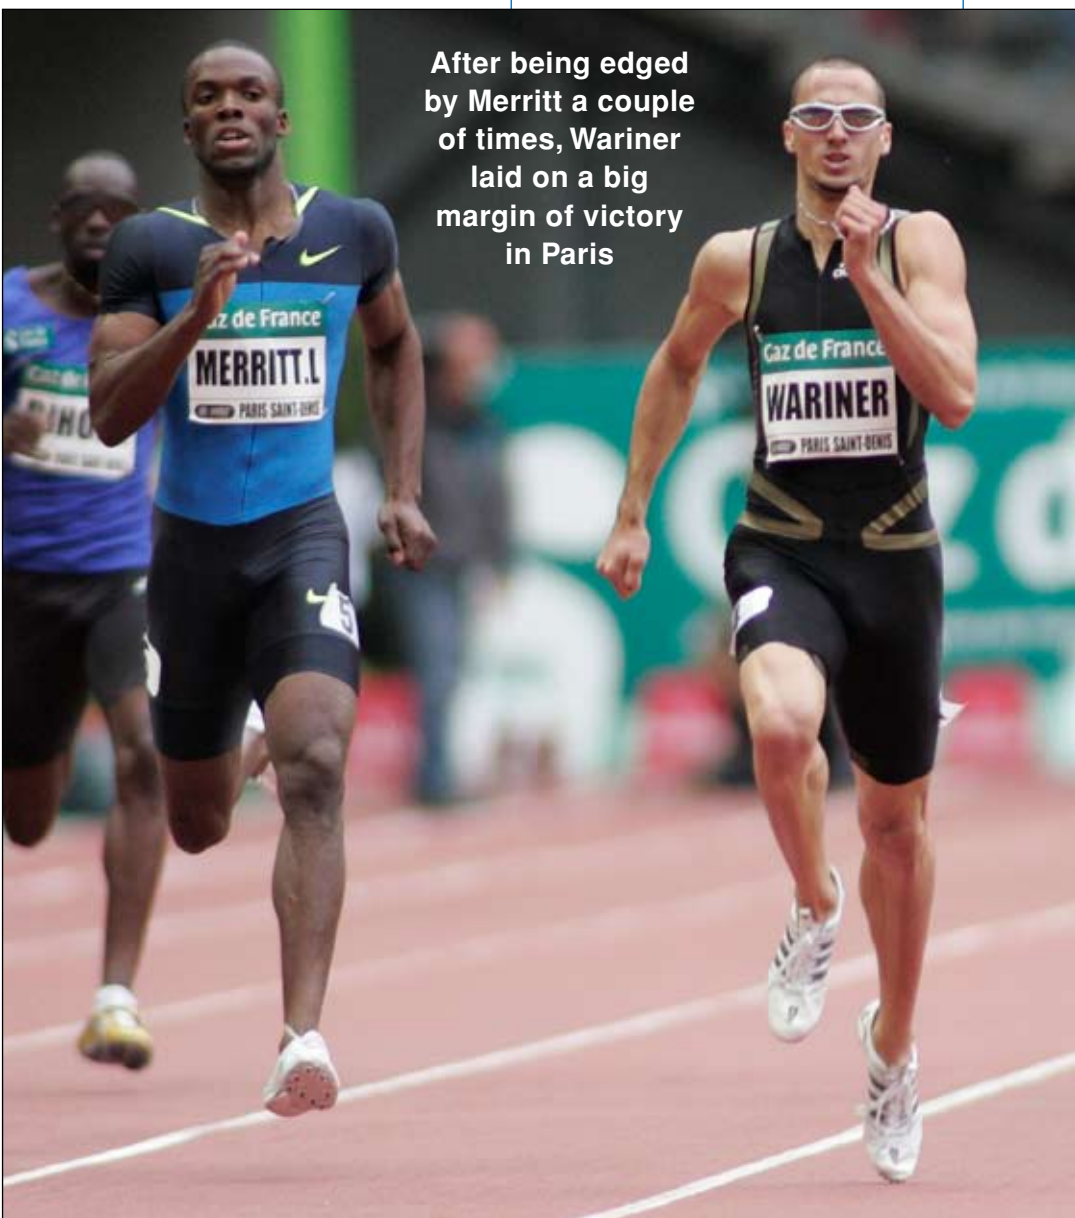

"There are improvements I can make to every part of my race though. I've got to get my speed under control at the start and then I've got to have a better kick. It's just a pity that France didn't get the 2012 Olympics because I'd love to have come back here and try for a gold medal in four years time," he added.

Wariner was not the only man give himself a massive boost to his confidence in Paris ahead of the Olympics.

Cuba's Dayron Robles reduced the 110 hurdles WR to 12.87 in Ostrava last month and here produced the equal second fastest time in history with 12.88.

"What made this a good time was that I had a very good start here. Technically I was very happy with what I did but don't ask me about when I'll reduce my world record. It might come, it might not, I can't predict it," reflected Robles, who made Beijing-bound Terrence Trammell look pedestrian despite running 13.19 for second place.

After being edged by Merritt a couple of times, Wariner laid on a big margin of victory in Paris

The famous French phrase 'Plus ça change, plus c'est la meme' - which translates as 'the more that changes, the more it's the same thing' for those you who struggle with anything more easterly than a Brooklyn accent - is an appropriate way to describe the state of the 2008 AF Golden League after four competitions.

Kenyan 800 phenom Pamela Jelimo and Croatian high jumper Blanka Vlašić were the only two left in the hunt for the $1 million jackpot after Rome and both women stayed in contention thanks to another win, with two more meets - Zurich and Brussels - to come after the Olympics.

Jelimo continues to astound and reduced her own WJR to 1:54.97 while Vlašić triumphed in her 33rd consecutive competition when she was the only woman to go clear at 6-7 (2.01).

Shannon Rowbury couldn't usurp reigning 1,500 world champion Maryam Yusef Jamal, who won the metric mile in 3:59.99, but the Duke alum continues to make spectacular PR improvements with 4:00.33 for second behind the Ethiopian-born Bahraini runner to move up to fourth on the US all-time list.

Kerron Clement showed that he's getting into his stride with another comfortable 400 hurdles win in 48.33 while Sanya Richards got verdict in a closely-fought 200 with 22.56.
