

— Kipsang Joins All-Time Marathon Top 10 —

from Pat Butcher

Wilson Kipsang became the ninth Kenyan champion in succession at the Commerzbank Frankfurt Marathon, while countrywoman Caroline Kilel completed yet another day of dominance for the East African nation as as Wilson Kiprotich—he moved to another level in running 2:04:57 to beat the experienced Tadese Tola, as the Ethiopian finished a distant 2nd (2:06:31) with another Kenyan Elias Chelimo (2:07:04), 3rd.

In the process he moved to No. 8 on the all-time world list, with the No. 10 performance (see sidebar).

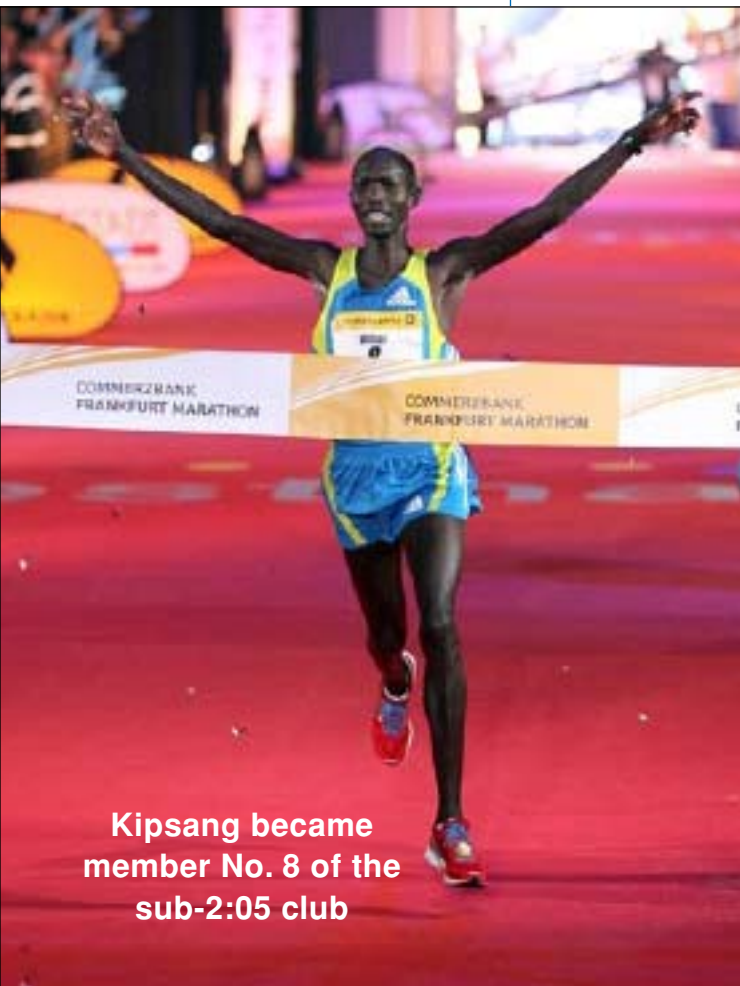

Frankfurt delivered its usual Sunday morning in late October, of ideal marathon conditions with

“When I saw that we were going faster than the planned time for the half,” said the winner, “I was happy. I don’t like it when the pace is too slow. I knew I had prepared very well and felt good.

“When I looked around, I could see that some of the guys were struggling.”

He was right to trust his feelings. Even though men with greater marathon pedigree were in the leading group; such as last year’s Berlin runner-up Francis Kiprop and Amsterdam runner-up Elijah Keitany, Kipsang was confident enough to seize the initiative.

Shortly after 30K was passed in 1:29:12, a group of six gradually moved clear. Tola preferred to run either alongside the Kenyan they each claimed a new course record. The 28-year-old Kipsang had talked a good race at Friday’s press conference and turned out to be one of those athletes whose deeds matched their words.

In only his second marathon—following a debut of 2:07:10 for a Paris 3rd in April ken the 2:06 barrier and the combined Kenyan and Ethiopian distance talent ensured it stayed that way right through to the red carpet-finish in the city’s Festival Hall.

The split at the halfway point was 1:02:38, well inside the pre-race target of 63:00 and pointing to a finishing time of 2:05:15.

the temperature hovering around 10 degrees (c50F) and barely a breath of wind.

By 15K, reached in 44:57, the pace had bropacemaker Lani Rutto or just behind with Kipsang keeping a close watch on them both. He had learned his lesson from finishing 3rd behind Tola in Paris.

“I decided I couldn’t let him build too much of a lead,” said Kipsang, “so I wanted to stay right behind in case he made a move. That’s how he’d beaten me in Paris.”

Kipsang had Tola’s measure this time. A group of four reached 35K in 1:43:59, comprising two apiece from Kenya and Ethiopia, Kipsang and Philip Sanga versus Tola and the unheralded Dereje Maregu, the latter running a superlative debut.

Five kilometres from the finish, Kipsang attacked and only Tola went with him. But the Ethiopian dropped further behind as Kipsang continued to run in superb, relaxed style to victory.

He became the third-fastest in the world this year, breaking the course record from last year by 1:17. He reaped a rich reward, his total payday amounting to 95,000€ (c$132,000). In defeat Tola still improved his PR by 10 seconds and Chelimo also ran a fine lifetime best.

The winning performance left Kipsang speculating, in his now customary relaxed style, that he could have a realistic chance of breaking the World Record.

The household of women's champion Kilel and husband Vincent is celebrating a victory which surprised herself. She confessed that it was only at 40K that she was confident of ultimate success.

"I thought that the Ethiopians, especially Dire Tune and Mare Dibaba, would be stronger but I realised with 2K remaining that I could beat them. I started to push, looked round and saw they did not respond."

The pace in the women's was on target to break the 5-year-old course record of 2:25:12, set by the Russian Alevtina Biktimirov, right from the start. Kilel was the one Kenyan to show the confidence to match the Ethiopian duo, reaching halfway with them in 1:10:59.

That was certainly fast and proved that Dire Tune, the '08 Boston champion, was being deadly serious when she gave 70:00 as her halfway target.

But until 30K Kilel had a significant ally in her husband, who had paced her to 32K in her win in Ljubljana last year, was once again providing able support.

At 40K she turned the screw, leaving Tune 10 seconds behind with the gap growing. The defending champ, Agnes Kiprof of Kenya, was almost a minute behind with her training partner, Hilda Kibet of the Netherlands.

Kilel broke the course record by 1:47, earning 40,000€ (c$55,000) in prize money and bonuses. Already she and her husband are planning to buy a plot of land at home in Kericho with perhaps a present or two for their three-year-old son Travis.
