

— The Garden Hosts Millrose Replacement —

by Rich Sands

New York City, January 28—"The show must go on" is a familiar mantra on Broadway, and just a few blocks away USA Track & from recent history).

And the showcase straightaway events were run at the obscure distance of just 50 meters, a not-so-subtle attempt to ensure aca factor in the hurdle wars.

The two-time Olympic silver medalist pulled off a surprise win in 6.45 to become =8th on the all-time U.S. list. David Oliver Field adopted that battle cry with the inaugural U.S. Open at Madison Square Garden.

The meet was a makeshift attempt to salvage a competition at the iconic venue following the legendary Millrose Games' decision to move uptown to the Armory.

Everything about the meet was smaller. Attendance was (generously) announced at 5844, down from last year's Millrose crowd of 9611 (which in turn was a sharp decline tivity on the all-time lists. No records were broken, but a quartet of veterans did make strong statements with convincing wins.

Coming off surgery last August to repair a tethered spinal cord, media darling Lolo Jones blasted out to a great start in the 50 hurdles and went wire-to-wire in 6.78, making her the No. 2 American all-time.

"To have this one under my belt and with such a tough field, it's just a sigh of relief that all that hard work paid off," the effusive LSU grad said. Tiffany Porter (6.83) and Kellie Wells (6.84) looked strong in 2nd and 3rd, but never seriously challenged Jones.

In the men's race (which, like the women's featured just four flights of barriers), Terrence Trammell proved that at age 33 he can still be had a lethargic start, but eventually made up ground to snatch 2nd in 6.50.

Jamaican stars Veronica Campbell-Brown (6.08, =No. 8 all-time) and Asafa Powell (5.64) pleased the sizable contingent of their countrymen in the stands, easily winning the dashes. Though he trailed Nesta Carter (5.67) through halfway, Powell never doubted the outcome. "I had a slip in the blocks," he said of his first indoor race since '04, "but as soon as I got out, the race was over."

And though the famed Wanamaker Mile is no longer a part of this meet, Bernard Lagat made sure the 11-lap race was a crowd pleaser.

An 8-time winner of Millrose's signature event, he used his trademark tactical savvy to move into the lead with a lap and a half to go. But Kenyan Silas Kiplagat, silver medalist in the world champs 1500 last year, showed his own strategic mastery and shot to the front at the bell to steal the win, 4:00.65–4:00.92.

Lagat admitted, "He surprised me by going to the front," but said he saw the race as a confidence boost heading into his AR attempt in the Millrose 5000. "I feel like I was strong the entire way. The thing I take from this is I'm really ready for a good 5000 now."

Three field events were contested, with world champion Jesse Williams taking the men's high jump (7-6/2.29), Ryan Whiting in the men's shot at 69-5¼ (21.16) and Jillian Schwartz in the women's vault at 14-10 (4.52). Jenn Suhr came in at that height, but three poor technical efforts sent her home with an empty scorecard.
