

— Shanghai DL: Hometown Hurdle Hero —

by Roy Conrad

Shanghai, China, May 19—Billed as the highlight event of the second stop on the Samsung Diamond League tour, the 110 hurdles lived up to the expectations in this Chinese port city.

National hero and Shanghai native Xiang Liu prevailed over an Olympic-final caliber field to claim a 12.97 victory, aided by only 0.4mps of wind. It was the sixth career sub-13 clocking for the '04 Olympic champion but his first sub-13 in five seasons.

The effort gave Liu a comfortable margin ahead of AR holder David Oliver (13.13), reigning world champ victor Jason Richardson (13.16) and World Indoor winner Aries Merritt (13.23).

But it wasn't a gimme of a win for Liu as Richardson led off the starting line and marginally over the first barrier. But then Liu began to assert himself and by the third hurdle the precise technique of the 28-year-old Liu gave him a lead he held to the finish, moving him to 9–2 all-time over Oliver.

Richardson clipped several hurdles late in the race while Oliver took over 2nd and kept up his pressure out in lane 7. Liu strained on the run-in after hurdle 10 and just after crossing the finish, he peeled off his singlet and joyously punched the air with a fist.

Before the meet, Liu said, "All the U.S. hurdlers are very competitive, so the competition will be fierce. I want to fulfill what I had been doing in training so I can be satisfied."

After his victory he commented, "I executed very well tonight. I hope I can keep my momentum, keep my form and pay attention to details during training so that I can perform well in the future."

Richardson said he wasn't pleased with the second half of his race, adding, "I know that Liu is incredibly hard to beat here. It was surprising to me to see an entire country get behind one athlete. I tip my hat to the Chinese culture. I wish we had a little bit more of that in America."

In another clash of speed, double Olympic 200 champion Veronica Campbell-Brown outran both 100 star Carmelita Jeter and the atrocious weather for the win. The Jamaican timed only 22.50—and wind-aided, no less, by a +2.8mps breeze—to Jeter's 22.62.

But overcoming the pelting rain and gusting winds added luster to VCB's win as she led into the homestraight, despite being drawn a lane inside her American rival and then held off Jeter's closing pursuit. The American looked to slip or stumble with about 5 meters left but there was no questioning VCB's dominance this time.

"This was my first 200 of the season and I have a lot of work to do," said Campbell-Brown. "The way I felt in this one, I know that each one will get better. The more I win, the more confident I become. So it's good."

The rain didn't dampen two distance efforts. In the women's 1500, Ethiopia's World Indoor champion Genzebe Dibaba used a 61-flat last lap to clock 3:57.77, the first sub-4:00 in two seasons. She smashed her outdoor PR from last year's 4:05.90 as well as her 4:00.13 indoor best from this winter.

The 21-year-old Dibaba held off unheralded teammate Abeba Arigawi, who revised her best even more drastically as she improved from last year's 4:10.30 all the way to 3:59.23.

In the men's 5000, Ethiopian Hagos Gebrhiwot—who turned 18 just on May 11—sped through the downpour with a 54.35 last lap to close his 13:11.00 win, 0.73 ahead of Kenyan pursuer Thomas Longosiwa.

Gebrhiwot's only other known track 5000 was a hand-timed 14:10.0 last year at altitude, although he did rush to a World Junior road best 13:14 in Carlsbad on April 1.

Fifth went to legend Kenenisa Bekele, who moved up on the last circuit from well back in the pack to clock 13:13.89. Nevertheless, it was the reigning Olympic champion's first 5K track loss since '06.
