SO THEY TELL US

TN TOM BRALY, L.A.: "Charley Dumas is a very disheartened boy over his ineligibility. I don't think the average person realizes how badly he wanted to come to SC. His whole case is just a matter of technicality. He had a D in a two unit course which lowered his average below a C, which is required by the PCC. The course he got the D in was taken on the presumption that he was going to UCLA. It is not even required to graduate from SC. Dumas told me he would stay in school and would welcome the chance to win the NCAA title three years in a row. He said he will jump in some of the big relay meets unattached but acted as if he really didn't care if he jumps or not. And now SC has lost Dick Dorsey, Warren Shelton, Dave Krowel and Junior Singh scholastically, and Dave Hollingsworth and Lanny Quigley as a disciplinary measure."

TN SYD DERONER, N.J.: "Courtney got off poorly in the AAU 600 but came back to the leaders and actually got up to Jenkins' shoulder at the last turn but didn't have enough to catch him. Poor Tom. With all those officials standing around I don't blame him for mistaking the finish line. There were more men in formal wear than there were in track clothes."

TN FOSTER RUCKER, San Gabriel, Cal.: "The Oxy distance medley team at 10:07.2 may not read so fast, but considering the track conditions and lack of competition it was real good. With SC and UCLA teams about as good there could be a new record this spring. Gutowski's 15' is just par for him now. How easily we get spoiled and are disappointed when he misses 15'4"."

TN SIDNEY CLAIRE, Minneapolis: "As a whole I think the Europeans disappointed in the Olympics. Such dismal failures as Consolini, Nielsen, Nilsson, Shcherbakov, and shall we include Zatopek, were astounding. Of course injuries played their part, but all in all I think the Europeans were hurt more than the Americans by the late date... I gather that Kuts was one of the few who had no super-natural help in his two brilliant performances. In Richards' case it seems uncertain whether it was the win or the Lord that helped. All this brings to mind the remark by Gil Dodds' coach to a reporter: 'Until we got down to 4:10 I was getting some credit, but after that the good Lord took over.'... The biggest part of the American team surprised by regaining their form and gave an outstanding performance; a number of others did about what they were expected to do, and that was plenty good; and about a third never regained their potential and would have done well in a Minnesota dual meet."

TN NEIL ALLEN, London: "On Jan. 10 Michael Lindsay, 18 years and 2 months, gave an exhibition in which he did 51'8" with the 16 pound shot, and 60'2 $\frac{1}{2}$ " with the 12. In the international discus he did 159'1" and 185'3 $\frac{1}{2}$ " with the 3 lb. 5 oz. junior discus. Certainly his junior weight (beaten only by 7 American boys I believe) makes him a better all around thrower than anyone except the late Leon Patterson (177'5" and 60'9 $\frac{7}{8}$ "). Lindsay is 6'2, and 210, and will go to London U. after one more summer at Marylebone Grammar School. ... John Young did 9.8 recently... In Britain for 1957 it will be quiet, but Hewson will probably run a 2:51 $\frac{3}{4}$ mile and a 2:18 1000m, Salisbury a 46.8 440, and I should imagine Ibbotson will be the star of the year with about 13:12 for 3 miles and some exciting defeats."

TN DON JACOBS, Colfax, Wash: "My track library includes 96 guides, 99 books, 54 years of periodicals, 31 programs and clippings from each year since 1936."

TN HUGH GARDNER, Indianapolis: "I see they've accepted Sime's 20 flat and I object; just as T&FN complained, the wind regulations are silly. As it was aptly pointed out, if 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ mph can benefit a sprinter .1 at 100 yards it is worth 9 mph at 220. That kind of logic doesn't seem to register higher up in international rules committees. I'm in favor of disbanding the IAAF group and turning it over to people who live and love track. Rulings would be more sensible... Most annoying observation of my quarter-century dabbling with performances has been the observation that no two people can compile Olympic histories with identical summaries. The major flaw seems to be an incapacity for converting meters."

TN BERT NELSON, L.A.: "I agree with Hugh Gardner's thoughts on wind aid, but don't see any connection with Sime's record. As one of two TNs to see it (Al Herschel was the other) I don't feel the wind was over the stated 3 m.p.h., and that's less than the 3.3 that Patton had in his record, and only a little over half the allowable limit."

WIND SPRINTS

California's former 14'4" vaulter Larry Anderson is a graduate student at Cornell, has been over 14' indoors this year... Tom Courtney is headed for a quick South African tour... SC's Ernie Bullard has been over 14'5" in practice... indoor quotes:

George Eastment, Manhattan: "Delany simply proved he is the greatest runner in the world. He had 48 minutes rest between his 1000-2 mile double, but could have done it in 35. He could have beaten Charlie Jenkins in the 600, he has that kind of speed."

Fred Schmerz, Millrose director: "There is no question Delany could give us a four minute mile indoors if he wanted to."

Emil Von Elling, NYU: "Delany is something out of this world. It's amazing. He runs without any knee lift worth mentioning, then he shifts into high like nobody I ever saw before, no effort at all. He could beat Jenkins, he could beat Sowell."

Irv Schoolman, N. Y.: "There is no limit to Delany's ability. What impressed me just before the second race was that Jumbo Elliott, his coach, said at no time were any complaints or suggestion of grumbling about hard work from Delany. The double was for the good of the team and that's all that matters to Ron. He is fabulous."

Ron Delany: "The only time I ever ran for a record was in my first mile, after I returned home after my freshman year. They wanted me to have a go at the Irish mile record. I couldn't disappoint them, could I now? So I broke it with 4:05.8 and I haven't tried deliberately for one since. Will I ever again? I should not like to announce it in advance. But if the situation ever should arise when I'm full of run, who knows?"

"John Landy is generous. It was he who gave me a tremendous lift when I reached Australia. I'll never forget his greeting. 'Ron', he said, 'you are going to win.' 'Please God I do', I said. But Landy had helped me greatly even before that. Remember those two races in California last spring when he beat me badly? Landy told me then I must learn to relax, and must improve my arm action. I'm a stubborn Irishman. Everything I am I owe to Coach Elliott. No coach ever worked harder or more patiently with a runner than he did with me. The one thing he just couldn't hammer into my thick head was improved arm action. When Landy said the same thing, all Jim's advice flooded back into my mind. Jim had been so correct about everything he'd ever told me and yet I'd ignored the soundest advice he'd given me. So I went to work immediately on my arm action and the results speak for themselves."

Bill Nieder: "You can't layoff very long at a time and expect not to fall back. You've got to keep working and improving or you'll drop out of the picture. I have my heart set on winning the next Olympics and breaking the world record. I've already found out that when you finish college it is hard to maintain interest. I suppose that is the biggest difference with anyone. But I want to reach that goal bad enough to keep at it. And I hope to be competing every week somewhere... At Honolulu, enroute to Melbourne, I wasn't even going to workout. I didn't feel like throwing. But Oerter asked me to go out with him, so I did. I took a few standing and felt good. All at once I hit 57 without crossing the ring. That was 2 feet better than I ever did before. Then I started throwing. I had 9 over 70. Four of those went over 61. My best was 61'6". I hit 60 each of the four days previous to the Olympics, then couldn't do it when the competition started. Looking back on it now I know I tightened. Competing under such pressure is the best experience I got."
