Sneazwell Leaps 7'2 5/8" at Tokyo

Tokyo, Oct. 12-15--The Tokyo International Sports Weeks Committee invited four track athletes from down under, and all four emerged victorious.

Australia's Tony Sneazwell captured the high jump with a promising leap of 7'2 5/8" to tie China's Ni Chih-Chin as the third greatest jumper of all-time. Only Valeriy Brumel (7'5 3/4") and John Thomas (7'3 3/4") have soared higher.

Sneazwell, who was jumping in the first meet of the new Australasia season, had a good attempt at 7'4 3/8" but took off too off too far back. His previous best was 7'1 1/4" in February of this year.

Australia got its second win from Ian Tomlinson in the triple jump. He went 52'10 1/4". New Zealand's two distance aces, Bill Baillie and Jeff Julian, also captured their specialties. Baillie ran a tactical 10,000 race and won in 29:44.6, the same time as Leonid Ivanov of the USSR. Julian won the marathon by more than two minutes in 2:18:00.6, and in the process beat a select field of 26-milers.

The US's lone winner among six entrants was John Pennel. Despite lack of condition due to a case of the flu and an injured back resulting from practice in a sand pit, he vaulted 15'9" and beat Wolfgang Rheinhardt on the count back rule.

Letters to the Editor

Reader Paul F. Monteith replies to Bill Peck's letter which appeared in the September 25 issue of the Newsletter.

"I think the letter written by Bill Peck in the September edition of the Newsletter was referring to my picks for the Olympic Games. I would like to answer that article. My picks which appeared in the August issue of T&FN were written in a hurry. I did it when I renewed my subscription to the Newsletter. I did it for fun and never thought they would be printed. For the record I would like to go a little further with these picks, especially those we disagree on.

"I did not know Salvatore Morale was injured when I made my picks. Even if he was not injured my pick would still be Rex Cawley.

"Dallas Long is my pick in the shot if he competes. I did not think he would but have learned since then that he will.

"If Hans Grodowski was not injured he would still be my top man in the 10,000 but because of his injury my pick is Robert Bogey of France.

"Although I picked Jazy to win the 5000 I doubt very much if he will compete in that event. If he does he will win it, otherwise the winner will be Mike Bernard. My pick for the 1500 is still Peter Snell, Jazy or no. And I will even pick the order of finish: Peter Snell, Michel Jazy, Dyrrol Burleson, Tom O'Hara, Siegfried Valentin, and Witold Baron.

"Mr. Peck, your picks in the long jump and the 400 must have been a joke because I never laughed so hard.

"One other thing. He states in his article that I named the top athletes by event in the year 1963. In the world list, which appeared in your September issue, my original picks lead in only 10 of 21 events, not counting the 100."

Fionnbar Callanan of Ireland sent these Olympic predictions to T&FN. They originally appeared in the "Irish Press."

Noted with Interest

Melvyn Watman of Athletics Weekly heads an article "Bolotnikov is back--but how good is he now?" Here is what he had to say:

Can Pyotr Bolotnikov recapture next year the form that has in the past won him world records and the Olympic and European titles at 10,000 meters? Your guess is as good as mine, even after watching him at the Meeting dell'Amicizia in the historic Tuscan town of Siena. His appearance in the 5000 there on Oct. 6 told us little.

It was only his third outing over 5000 this season, a season that has seen Bolotnikov sidelined with injury practically throughout. The previous weekend he made his comeback with a promising double: 29:16.4 10,000 and 14:09.2 5000 on successive days. It was hoped he would descend under 14 minutes in Italy but in fact he only just won the race from Franc Cervan (Yugoslavia) in 14:10.6--over a half a minute slower than his best of three years ago and indeed inferior in speed to his world record 10,000 of 28:18.2.

Still, it would be unwise to attach too much significance to this moderate performance. On a slow track in a race in which he led from the start, he gave the impression of running just fast enough to win and I think he underestimated the powers of Cervan who came perilously close to outsprinting the old master. Only a frenzied gallop over the last 10 meters carried Bolotnikov through the tape first. The Russian looked not the least distressed, though, and I feel sure he had many seconds up his sleeve had a greater effort been required.

History of Pole Vault

by Ray Kring

Track Coach, Pittsburg (Cal) High School

It was growing late on the afternoon of April 13, 1940, at Berkeley, Calif., during a triangular meet among the University of Washington, the San Francisco Olympic Club, and the University of California. The pole vault was about the only event still being contested and only a handful of spectators had remained to watch. Three men had just cleared 14'2" and were about to attempt 14'5". These men were Guinn Smith of California, Bud Deacon of the Olympic Club, and Cornelius "Dutch" Warmerdam, also of the Olympic Club. All three missed their first jumps at the new height, but on the second round Warmerdam sailed over. Smith and Deacon both missed their remaining jumps, and Warmerdam was left to himself with the bar placed at 14'8½". The slim high school teacher from Tuolumne, California, flew over on his first try, and created a new personal best.

The crossbar was then placed at the "impossible" height of 15' even. Warmerdam missed his first trial, but on his second attempt, with the few track fans that were on hand holding their breath, he sailed over clean and true, the first man in history to clear that "impossible" height of 15 feet. He then took three tries at 15'2", and on his first two, came fairly close. His third attempt found him tired and missing badly.

At the National AAU Championships in Fresno, California, on June 29, of that same year, Warmerdam raised his new world record another 1½" when he cleared 15'1½" on his first attempt.

Eleven men had heights in excess of 14 feet during the 1940 track and field season. Kenny Dills of USC was the second best bamboo man of the year, when on June 7 at the Compton Invitational, Compton, California, he leaped 14'5" to become the fourth highest vaulter of all time. Third best vaulter of the year was the former world record holder and Olympic champion, Earle Meadows, with 14'5". Dick Ganslen, competing for the Shore A. C. of New Jersey, scaled 14'4¼", while Ralph Ross, the West Point cadet, set a new Military Academy mark with 14'2½".

The year 1941 found "Dutch" Warmerdam breaking his own world mark two more times, and clearing 15 feet or higher a total of 10 times. 1941 also saw the United States plunge into an all-out war that was to last for four years and have a definite effect on the pole vault marks of the world.

At Stanford University, on April 12, 1941, almost exactly one year to the day when he first cleared 15 feet, Warmerdam vaulted 15'2½" on his third trial for a new world standard. Two months later, on June 6, at Compton, Warmerdam cleared 15 feet, 15'4¼", and a grand high of 15'5¾".

Meanwhile that year, two California vaulters were dueling with each other for the supremacy of the college vault. Guinn Smith of the University of California and Willare Schaefer of the University of Southern California, sailed over 14'6", with Smith winning the West Coast Relays at 14'6½" for a new relays and school record. Schaefer's vault was made during a three way meet with UCLA and the Olympic Club, at which time he defeated Warmerdam for the "Flying Dutchman's" only defeat while he was actively competing as the world's champion.

Other 14 foot plus vaulters of 1941 were Harold Hunt of the University of Nebraska, tying for the NCAA crown with Smith at 14'2", Luther Nichols, a teammate of Smith's at California, and Earle Meadows of the Southern California Sportsmen's Association, both with a best of 14'.

At the start of the track season of 1942 the news from the war fronts was bleak, indeed. The United States was still waging a defensive battle and back home the war production was in full swing.

Military enlistments had not begun to completely affect athletic performances yet. Warmerdam continued his unparalleled record breaking performances. He cleared 15 feet 14 times during 1942, and climaxed his drive upward with his all-time outdoor best vault of 15'7¾" at the first annual California Relays, Modesto, on May 23. He was unable to try higher that night, for over zealous fans stormed on to the field and broke the x-bar into bits for souvenirs.

Willard Schaefer of USC was the second best vaulter in the world that year, at 14'6" made at the West Coast Relays. A. Richmond Morcom, a young lad from the University of New Hampshire, cleared 14'4½" indoors, while Jack Defield of Minnesota topped 14'4" for second place behind Warmerdam in the AAU outdoor championships.

The number one vaulter outside the United States in 1942 was a Japanese by the name of Bunkichi Sawada, who leaped 14'1¼". Harold Hund of the University of Nebraska set a Big Six mark with 14'¾". Irving Moore of Piedmont, California, a first year student at Santa Rosa Junior College in California, flew higher than any other J.C. vaulter before when he cleared 14'0".

Strange sounding names were prominent in the news during the war year 1943. Such names as Bougainville, Truk, Rabaul, Oran, Vichy French, Panzer, and the... The war was beginning to make a dent on athletic performances in America, although a few of the best pole vaulters were able to participate in some meets, competing for their military organizations. Warmerdam himself went into the naval service as an instructor at Del Monte Preflight School in California. Although he cleared 15 feet 16 times during 1943, more than any other year, he competed in only seven outdoor meets. Warmerdam's winning heights outdoors were: 15' at the National AAU meet in New York, 15'½" at Fresno, 15'1¾" at Berkeley, 15'½" at Chapel Hill, North Carolina, 15'2½" at Modesto, California, 15'3" at San Francisco, and his best outdoor mark of the year, 15'4" at the Central District AAU meet in Chicago, on July 2. The "Flying Dutchman's" best indoor mark that year resulted in a new world indoor record when he jumped 15'8½" at the Chicago Relays, March 20.

There were only four other men who vaulted over 14' during the year 1943. Irving Moore, the Santa Rosa Junior College athlete competing for the San Francisco Olympic Club, cleared 14'6" at the U.S. Army Air Force Aid Society Meet in San Francisco.

Jack Defield of Minnesota was the best college leaper in the land with a winning height of 14'1" at the NCAA Championships, in which he successfully defended his title. Dick Ganslen, vaulting for the U.S. Army Signal Corps, had a top mark of 14'½", while A. Richmond "Boo" Morcom of New Hampshire cleared 14 feet even, and Earle Meadows cleared 14' while in the Army in China.

The year 1944 saw the tide of the war beginning to turn. The big news came from the Coast of France when on June 6, the invasion of France began by the Allied forces.

The pole vault performances of 1944 were at the lowest ebb in a long time. Not since the war years of 1917-1918 were the top marks of the world so far below the performances of the previous years. Warmerdam, vaulting for the Monmouth Preflight, competed in only two meets that year, the National AAU Championships in New York City, which he won at 15' and the Drake Relays where he cleared 14'7¾". It was the last competitive vaults that the great champion ever made.

In retrospect here a moment, we might take a look back into the five year, 15 foot career of this immortal pole vaulter. By clearing 15 feet on April 13, 1940, Warmerdam was the first vaulter to completely destroy the fallacy that a 15 foot vault was impossible. Not until 11 years later did another vaulter clear that height. He was the first and only athlete in the world, in any event, to surpass the previous world record 43 times. He was the first and only athlete, in any event, to establish 22 American stadium and auditorium records. He was the first and only vaulter able to guarantee a 15 foot vault each time he took hold of a bamboo pole—indoors, outdoors, daytime, evenings, and in any section of the United States. He was so sure of his ability to clear 15 feet any time, that he never vaulted higher than 13'10" in practice, and never took a practice vault once the outdoor track and field season started.

Warmerdam was an amateur in the strictest sense of the word and a worthy recipient of the James E. Sullivan Memorial Award, given annually to the "amateur athlete who, by performance, example, and good influence, did most to advance the cause of good sportsmanship during the year."

At no time in history has any athlete been so far advanced over his competitors in any field of sport. For Warmerdam was at the very top and no one else was even close to him. As Nat J. Cartmell, Pennsylvania star sprinter in 1906-07-08, said, "Warmerdam is the only all-time indisputable, supreme champion, the athletic world has ever known."

Four college vaulters cleared 13'6" in tying for the NCAA title of 1944. John Schmidt of Ohio State, William Blackwell of Oberlin, Phil Anderson of Notre Dame, and Robert Phelps of Ill.

Outside of Warmerdam's marks, the next best vault of 1944 was turned in by a European. And two marks were from neutral countries not participating in the war. Ozolin of Russia had the best mark with a leap 13'9¾".

Three California high school boys had top marks in the world during that war year of 1944 topped by Del Smith of Glendale at 13'5¾". DeField of Minnesota was National AAU Indoor champion at 14'.

The year 1945 saw the end of the Second World War and the beginning of the Atomic Age. The track and field season of that year was still conducted under war times conditions and the marks were only a little better than the previous year.

The best vaulter in the world in 1945 was William Moore of Western Michigan College, who won the Drake Relays pole vault title at 14', the only 14' vault of the year. John Schmidt of Ohio State had the second best mark at 13'10", while Milton Padway, won the Penn Relays with a leap of 13'9".

One of the top five hammer throwers this season is JOSEF MATOUSEK of Czechoslovakia at 225'8".

Another improving 5000 meter man is Poland's LECH BOGUSIEWICZ. This season he has run 13:52.8.

Germany's JURGEN KALFELDER is one of the best quarter-milers outside of the US.

East Germany's SIEGFRIED HERMANN improved his life-time best in the 5000 this year to 13:49.2.

Hungary's GYULA ZSIVOTSKY is the second best hammer thrower in the world this season at 226'7 $\frac{1}{2}$ ".

The second European to clear 16-feet was Germany's WOLFGANG REINHARDT. His height: 16'1 $\frac{3}{4}$ ".

The leading javelin thrower in the world in 1963 is Finland's PAULI NEVALA at 283'2 $\frac{1}{2}$ ".
